Project Title: Women in Computing

I'd like to build this site as multiple pages, rather than a long, single page website. Typical site navigation probably across the top. I think there is plenty of content and photography to build out individual pages. I think it might be interesting to break the eras (1700s, 1800s...) across different pages.

Home Page/Introduction – Introduce basic point I want to get across about Women in Computing. Set the tone for their overlooked impact.

the era pages

information about the gender gap

organizations

Sources – this page will just list sources, including the Wikipedia page, as well as other sources for photography, and any other credits that need to be provided.

Talked about the overall vibe I want for the page. Making the history fun and cool to look at. Taking advantage of the scroll. Showing the progression along the timeline . I have no specific request for colors or ui.

Initial Build Notes

11/17/2022

Meet with your designer once again and discuss the initial build.

Discuss what's working, what still isn't, where the microsite goes from here.

Some slight color changes

Font a bit smaller

Also, discuss a strategy for technical and design issues that may exist.

We talk about what things we might consider animating and how js might make some scroll animations bring the timeline together.

How is the page structured?

The page structure makes sense and I like how it's divided up, the sections make sense

What is the plan for how the design will function responsively?

Things arranged horizontal will go vertical, changes to the timeline numbers

What elements seem to be problematic or difficult?

The overlap of the photos and the text is definitely going to be a fun aspect to work out.
